New Year Reflections

In Biblical literature the symbolism of geography plays an important role. Thus it is that prophet and sage repeatedly employ the mountain to symbolize exaltation, and the valley as the symbol of darkness and despair. As we enter upon the year 5710 it is clear to all of us that mankind is in a valley period of history and, in the language of the prophet, Hosea, is passing through the valley of "Achor" (trouble). Hosea maintains that the valley of trouble will lead to "the gateway of hope".

Perhaps our period of history harks back to a valley description set forth by the great prophet, Joel, who sees the nations gathering and re-arming in a narrow valley and he calls this valley the "valley of decision".

> "Proclaim ye among the nations,
> Prepare war;
> Stir up the mighty men;
> Let all the men of war draw near,
> Let them come up.
> Beat your plowshares into swords
> And your pruning hooks into spears."
> (Joel 4.9-10)

Is not this picture of Joel true of the nations of today? Do we not witness again a race in armaments everywhere? Atomic weapons are being forged at a most rapid pace and all sorts of secret war weapons are in the making. The best brains of the world of science seem to give most of their inventive genius in helping to drive the nations into "the valley of decision."

Behold the contest that is at present being waged between East and West! The Soviet Union, the erstwhile ally, finds herself in a cold war with the democratic nations of the West. And millions of people throughout the world are trembling because of this contest and are in the grip of fear. The Soviet Union's relation with the Western democracies is indeed a complicated subject.

The average citizen does not have the means of obtaining the facts. The Iron Curtain is not the monopoly of the Russians. The owners of the instruments of public information in the West no doubt have vested interests of their own and cannot claim to be free from bias. Hence how difficult it is now to discover truth, due to propaganda agencies spreading red herrings with the result that the power of reasoning is rapidly leaving us.

Wherein lies hope in the present international crisis? Surely, we must reason together and realize that the state capitalism of Russia, erroneously called Communism, is here to stay. Millions adhere to this system of economic equalitarianism though they do not have political liberty. We who have political liberty, though not economic equality, of course are devoted to our democratic system. But there must be room for both systems on this planet, otherwise what meaning is there to a United Nations Organization? On this Holy Day we must fervently pray that the cold war be speedily defrosted. Then, indeed, statesmen may negotiate and build co-operatively the decent society.

For, if Russia and the United States convert the cold war into a hot war, it will mean that Hitler, even in death, will have won. Mankind may yet emerge from this valley of Achor and reach a gateway of hope through better understanding. By all means let Russia and the West compete in providing a more abundant life for their respective peoples and such a rivalry between the two systems need not terrorize us who have faith in democracy.

Above all, in confidence must men and women labour anew for world unity and world brotherhood. How meaningful therefore on the New Year, is the synagogue ritual which emphasizes the ultimate removal of the reign of arrogance from the earth and the establishment of a family of nations dwelling in peace and justice.

But, much as we are concerned about the international situation which now finds itself in "the valley of decision", we are thrilled on this Rosh Hashonah to behold the miracle of Israel's "valley of the dried bones" come to life. The whole world stands in admiration of the State of Israel. A few generations ago, when the Jewish colonists came to Turkish Palestine and dared to challenge the desert, they were scorned and ridiculed. When, fifty years ago, Theodor Herzl dared to behold a vision of Israel restored in its ancestral home, the realists mocked this greatest Jew of the nineteenth century.

These hard realists felt that Israel as a nation is devoid of vitality for any more to influence mankind and that finish is the word to be applied to the national history of the Jews. But Herzl, the idealist, was the realist. We who in our day witnessed the slaughter of millions of Jewish men, women, and children by the Nazi criminals, must now consider the establishment of Israel as a holy monument to the sacred memory of our dead.

Thus, on this Rosh Hashonah, we cannot help but give solemn thought to the drama of Herzl's remains having been transferred from Vienna to the soil of Holy Jerusalem. Ben-Gurion was correct when he designated this transfer a victory march rather than a funeral. This touching ceremony of the burial of Herzl's bones in Jerusalem should remind us not to discount visions and ideals, though we be living in a world of hard-headed realism.

Because of the State of Israel, ours is indeed renewed vigor and Jews rightly walk this earth with a new dignity. The Jewish state is not only a refuge for the homeless but a center of dynamic Jewish cultural and spiritual activity. Indeed, for the entire Middle East the Jewish state has set a great example of how the desert may be driven back and be made fruitful. We foresee in this renascent Jewish state a seeking of new forms of religious life which will be based not so much upon ritual, but upon the prophetic ideals of Judaism.

In the realm of philanthropy the Jews of the Americas have set an unparallelled example. In the whole history of philanthropy, no such glorious chapter in the giving toward life-saving and state-building has ever been evidenced. On this Holy Day let us realize that Jewish life in the Diaspora must also flourish even as in Israel. The faithful and the devoted, however, must realize that philanthropy alone will not make Jewry of the Diaspora into a flourishing community. The time is at hand when we must give our energies largely to our synagogues, our schools and our seminaries, though not neglecting the agencies engaged in philanthropy. Even as in the past, we have every friday

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Beginning with the first day of the seventh month of the Hebrew calendar, this is the season when the Jews all over the world wish each other a happy new year. However, it is not a carefree period and the difference between the Jewish and the non-Jewish conception of a New Year holiday is extreme. For the non-Jews the occasion is one of relaxed merry-making and resolutions lightly assumed and quickly forgotten. For the Jews the New Year festival first looks backward in careful contemplation of what was wrong about the year just past and approaches the coming year with preparation which is prayerful.

The biblical writers knew Rosh Hashonah as The Day of Memorial and the Day of Blowing the Alarm. The other name for the stirring day is the Day of Judgment. In all names applied to Rosh Hashonah there is the implication that now is the time not only to review the events, actions, and behaviour of the year gone by but to raise the standard of life during the year now at hand. Hopes are renewed but every Jew knows that there is no escaping the inner battle of righteous effort. The heart in which hope flutters must also be tough enough to endure a good thorough going over with explicit reference to the Ten Commandments, the teachings of the Prophets, and the demands on conduct and deportment which reside in the traditions and customs of the Jewish group.

Thus, Rosh Hashonah is, indeed, a festival of imposing and exceptional nature. No wonder there are special prayers in connection with its observance, and it is easy to believe, as the Jews have been told, that even the angels in heaven tremble on these days of judgment when the Lord considers the deeds of every creature, for there is no escape from a harsh decree except through repentance and action following upon noble resolve. The understanding is clear that reclamation rests on self-help for those who really want to be inscribed and sealed for a good year, and there is no nonsense about the warning quality in the blasts of the horn which is blown to sound the alarm and to symbolize the admonitions of the Prophets.

In the Jewish view Rosh Hashonah is the day when all mankind stands in judgment to be improved. If there is a way for the individual to inscribe himself in the Book of Life the same way is open to the community and to the world at large. If smug complacency and self-satisfaction are bad for the individual and thwart development, so are they bad for the entire Jewish group or community. If self-examination and stock-taking are good and elevating for the individual, they are also good and necessary for the community, at least once a year when Rosh Hashonah by its very nature brings a revival of Judaism.

The Jewish community today is the living picture of feverish activity. Its communal workers ride on a merry-go-round of many causes and meetings and the hectic collection of much money. It looks to be in the pink of condition and recognizes only one enemy, the old, the external one, anti-Semitism. Just how strong and healthy the Jewish community is on the inside is a matter of conjecture and concern wherever it is viewed with a critical eye in keeping with this season of internal examination.

For example, there was a time in the memory of mature people, not so long ago, when the Jewish group exacted of itself a higher code of behaviour and moral conduct in every way than that of the other groups among which it lived. It was always a matter of survival and ancient pride that Jews must be rigidly different and better and they became known the world over for such characteristics as sobriety, morality, and the like.

What was praiseworthy and what was deplorable was always well understood by them on the basis of biblical teaching, and lapses of conduct that were considered foreign to Jewish ways were denounced as disgraceful and got stern and swift censure. It was not enough for a Jew to be just as good as anybody else. He had to be much better, he had to have spiritual stamina, and he had to resist habits and vices which would weaken his people and drag them down. His conduct was not excused by the styles of the times but was charged up to the influence of the worst in the general environment which he, poor devil, was so weak as to copy instead of taking the best.

Today's generation places emphasis on materialism, on display, on the ability to accumulate rather than on the strength of character to have, and on the race to get ahead. This generation of Jews was made soft in a soft age by the easy surfeit of everything, sometimes at the hands of foreign-born parents who are still often of better stuff than their offspring, for all the advantages these have enjoyed. The shabby goals of freedom from work, freedom from care, freedom from discipline and for self-indulgence; the drastic decline in speech, manners, and social standards; the increased drinking among both sexes and its close relation to looseness; the unawareness of the value of the real things of life; attention to the cheap and tawdry; widespread ignorance of what Judaism requires of the individual to save itself from disintegration, these are some of the evils that menace the internal health of the Jewish group. Is there no shofar for waking up the enslumbered? f.f.c.

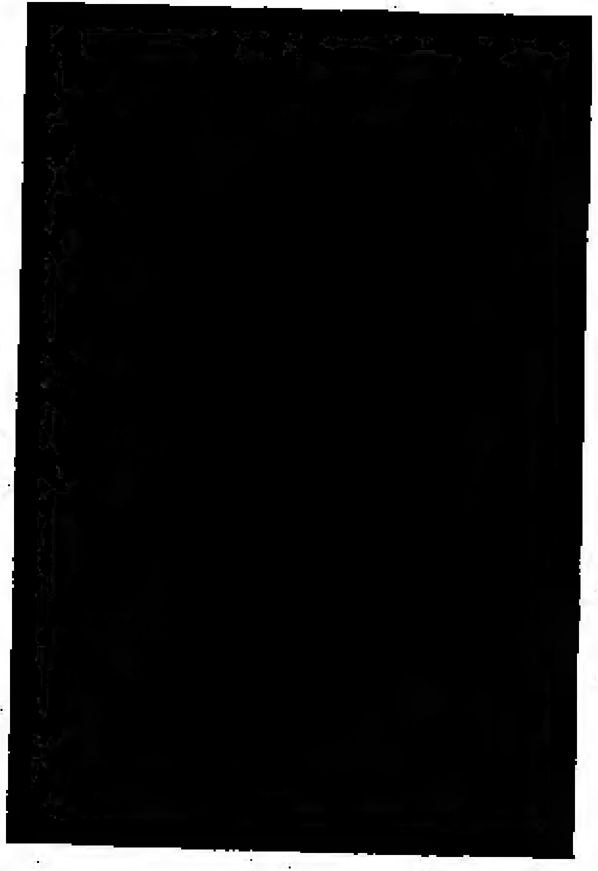
CANADIAN JEWRY SEEKS STATURE FOR THE NEW YEAR, GIVES THANKS FOR THE OLD

BY SAMUEL BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, NATIONAL PRESIDENT, CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

As we enter the New Year of 5710 we cannot but give heartfelt thanks for the blessings which we have enjoyed during the past year. Our restless world has enjoyed a large measure of peace and even in the Holy Land, where a year ago blood was being shed in defence of the City of Peace, the cannon has been stilled.

Our thanks go out for the domestic peace which Canadian citizens have been enjoying. The racial and religious amity which has ever been the hallmark of the civilization of the New World has recovered from the propaganda attacks of Fascism and the ideals of equality and of fairness which are the standards of our civilization are again on the forward march here at home.



Samuel Bronfman, Montreal, President, Canadian Jewish Congress
—Copyright by Karsh

Our gratitude for this is not tempered by our realization of how far we still have to go to achieve full application to all phases of Canadian living. Canadian Jewry is pledged to the utmost effort for the development and intensification of our traditional culture.

By the same token the coming months and years will see us even more intensely engaged in our work in behalf of educational and cultural causes. The renaissance of Israel, the re-assertion of positive Jewish instincts in the minds of the survivors of war and massacre in Europe and the dedication of Jewry on this continent all presage a renaissance of Judaism in its traditional field of creativity—the Jewish spirit and our ancient faith.

The homeless of our people have risen to found new homes. The D.P. camps of Europe, which have become the symbols and incarnation of millenia-old Diaspora, have rapidly become depopulated as one-year-old, strife-threatened Israel energetically bestirred itself to bring to the ancient soil of Palestine scores of thousands of the harassed of our people. This immigration is taking place at an incredible tempo and on an unbelievable scale. Verily, "When the Lord returned the captivity of Israel we were as in a dream."

As part of the same liquidation of the camps of Europe we have seen other countries, among them our own country, interpret their immigration policies more generously and admit other thousands of our stricken fellow-Jews.

We have been privileged to bring and to welcome to the shores of this country more than a thousand parentless youths; we have placed them in Canadian Jewish homes; we have found for them employment and friends; we have facilitated their adjustment and their education. We have attempted to restore their confidence in mankind. The organized community has attempted, to whatever degree that may be, to assuage their orphanhood.

JEWRY MUST CREATE STRONG CENTERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

BY RABBI NORMAN N. SHAPIRO, OF UNIVERSITY AVENUE SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO

The beginning of the year 5710 in the Jewish calendar will mark the continuation of an era introduced with the epoch-making Israeli Declaration of Independence on the fifth of Iyar in 1948. The establishment of the State of Israel and its admission into the United Nations have begun, and will continue, to affect Jewish life in many respects. Jews resident in countries outside of Israel and for that matter even those in Israel itself, cannot feel the full intensity or appreciate the magnitude of these historic eventualities, because we are all contemporaries, too close to the scene of reality to be able to appraise these phenomena in their true historic perspective. It will probably take generations before Israel, world Jewry, and mankind at large will look back from the vantage point of time, and truly evaluate the world-wide repercussions of Israel's statehood.

That a full-fledged revolution in Jewish life is already taking place, and will continue to gain momentum as time goes on, is an acknowledged fact. There is hardly any sphere of thought or action in the life of Jews in and outside of Israel that will remain untouched. Be it in the realm of Jewish religion, education, philanthropy, music, painting — in everything that adds up to Jewish living or being — the revolution is on.

In Israel, where our people will be blessed enough to live in a normal Jewish milieu, there is already evolving a development along political, social, religious, and economic lines, which to the historian will probably appear to be necessary and expected change. Whatever happens in Israel will reflect the democratic will of a people coping with the conditions and challenges in their own homeland. By virtue of the fact that Jews are rooted in their own country, whatever they produce, create, or manufacture, will be doubled "Israeli". As one writer has aptly put it, "In Israel no Magen David has to be glued to a chair to make it Jewish, no picture of a bearded Talmudist determines the Jewishness of a painting, and the stage will be Jewish without the 'Dybbuk' and 'Brothers Ashkenazi'."

Not so in countries outside of Israel where Jews are resident. Not so in the Galut where Jewishness must be created against great odds, where Judaism, in order to flourish, must do so with the impediment of having to conform to the dominant culture of the non-Jewish majority. In the Diaspora we are very much on our own. What we need is a clear analysis of the situation.

Sometimes the facts of history are ugly. We must first come to the realization that only about seven percent of the Jews in the world will probably live in Israel; 93% of the Jews are living in, and most likely will continue to reside in countries outside of Israel. Facing us is the reality that in spite of the measure of inspiration Jews everywhere hope to receive from Israel, a major segment of world Jewry will continue to live in the Galut.

The facts of Jewish history also reflects the following foreboding phenomenon: Wherever there has been a strong Jewish community in Palestine, there has been a weak and declining Jewish Diaspora. Now with the beginnings of a new flourishing era in Israel, will Jews outside take the course of least resistance and succumb to the precedents of the past and become inert, and decadent? Or will we develop a thriving Jewish civilization with its religion, education, art, and literature, in Diaspora countries along with Israel?

Jews in the Babylonian period and during the Golden Age in Spain enjoyed a period of great literary activity and creative endeavor. This was done at a time when Jewish leadership in Palestine was on the decline. There is no compelling reason, now, why Jews in the Galut cannot meet the challenge of revitalising Jewish life, instead of submitting meekly and indifferently to the failures of the past.

Isn't it a rather strange coincidence that the great mass of Jewish migration came to North America in the 1890's and thereafter, during the decade of the birth of the Zionist dream in 1897 at the first Zionist Congress in Basle, Switzerland? For fifty years Jews of America, Canada, and the Galut at large have been concentrating on the upbuilding of Zion. The first phase of the challenge, the political objective culminating in statehood has been won and is being secured. From this point on we shall enter the second phase of our labors, and we will hear more and more of Ahad Ha'am and his philosophy of "Kibbush Hagola", where the Diaspora, both by the inspiration it will receive from Israel as a cultural center, and by its own determined efforts will thereby effect the renaissance of Jewry throughout the world. We must never lose sight of the ominous fact that the cultural and spiritual revivification of Diaspora Jewry may be infinitely more complex than the fifty years that it took to attain our political objectives.

We will not abandon for one moment our support for Israel and we must at the same time neutralize and counteract the corrosive effects of assimilation and indifference in Jewish life, by bending our efforts to the development of a flourishing Jewish civilization in which every Jew, no matter where he lives, can find his niche and part to play.

As Babylonia bore the torch for Palestine, as Spain together with France and Germany raised the banner aloft that fell from the hands of the Gaonim in Babylon, as the Jews experienced a Golden Age in Spain and other Moslem countries in the middle ages; as Poland and Lithuania came to the fore when Jewish life in other countries suffered from retrenchment; as Germany came to life in the 19th century with its "Jewish Science", as Israel is now a state, in the 20th Century; so we exhort Diaspora Jewry to create strong Jewish centers side by side with that of Israel.

A New Agency Plans The Educational Program Of The Toronto Jewish Community

BY MURRAY SHIFF, OF TORONTO, ACTING EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, CENTRAL REGION, CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS; AND MISS FLORENCE HUTNER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, UNITED JEWISH WELFARE FUND OF TORONTO

An event of far-reaching importance to the Jewish community of Toronto occurred in December of 1948 when the Central Bureau of Jewish Education was created. To many readers this name is still unfamiliar. This is because the Bureau is such a recent venture that its full impact has as yet not been felt by the community. With time, the potentialities and importance of this institution will be realized by everyone who gives a thought to our treasured Jewish culture, its perpetuation and enrichment.

The Central Bureau of Jewish Education is a co-ordinating body whose function is to improve the present educational resources of the Jewish community and to indicate and provide for unmet needs. It is a cooperative venture in which nearly all Jewish educational institutions participate. Its aim is to establish a framework within which every creative element in Jewish education can function most effectively.

To understand the circumstances which resulted in the creation of the Central Bureau of Jewish Education, one must first have a clear picture of the Jewish educational set-up in Toronto. This in turn requires some understanding of the historical background against which Jewish educational theory and technique developed.

The story of Jewish education is a story of change - - of continuity through change. It is a story of struggle and adjustment to ever-changing conditions. In its development, the history of Jewish education reminds one of Toynbee's "challenge and response" theories of history. When man's environment provides the right challenge, Toynbee claims, he responds to it by taking a step forward in the path of civilization. In like manner has Jewish educational theory and practice developed. Whenever Jewry came into contact with another civilization — whenever its environment changed — the curriculum, philosophy, and organization of Jewish education changed.

The earliest form of Jewish education was that given in the home. The parents were the teachers and they instructed the child in the customs and rituals of the people. With time, a body of teachers arose whose specific function was to train the youngster to take his place in the community. The earliest instruction was confined to the study of the Torah, but with the completion of the Mishnah in the Second Century and the Talmud in the Sixth Century, these were added as basic subjects of study.

During the Middle Ages, in addition to the elementary school or cheder, schools of higher learning, or Yeshivas, arose in many of the larger communities. These attracted students from every part of Europe, who came to study the Talmud and Commentaries under prominent scholars.

In Russia and Poland of the 18th and 19th Centuries, it is difficult to differentiate or separate formal Jewish education from the total life to which the Jewish child was subject. The home, the synagogue, the community and the cheder, the talmud torah and Yeshivah worked together to produce a unique and intense Jewish consciousness.

In Germany of the 18th and 19th centuries the aim of the predominant form of Jewish education was to bring the Jew in close touch with German culture. Less time was devoted to the study of Talmud, and literature, grammar and philosophy appeared as important parts of the curriculum. The study of the Bible was emphasized and it was studied in German with the help of Mendelssohn's famous translation. This effort of widening the intellectual horizon of the Jew — and the Haskalah movement which had this end as its aim — influenced Jewish education most profoundly. In the end, however, it gave way to a new movement which effected Jewish education so profoundly that to this day its influence is undiminished. This new movement was Jewish nationalism with its Palestinian orientation, aimed at imbuing the Jew with a love for Zion, the national home of the past and of the future.

With the waves of Jewish immigration to the Western world which began in the 17th century with the Spanish-Portuguese movement, the Jewish community faced yet a new challenge, and Jewish education underwent new adjustments. Democracy, an essentially materialistic philosophy, the deterioration of the traditional type of Jewish home, the decreased role of the synagogue and the organized community in one's personal life—all these worked to shift the burden of Jewish education from the family to the formal educational institution. The father of the family was too concerned with "making a living" to devote himself personally to the education of his children. The democratic community had relieved him of the burden of secular education and some one had to take the problem of Jewish education off his hands.

The organized Jewish community played a minor role in this new life and every parent was forced to make his own arrangements for the Jewish education of his children. Itinerant teachers went from house to house, dispensing an inadequate minimum of Jewish education, while some, more enterprising, organized the familiar cheder in some spare room of their homes. Later, the local synagogue stepped in and put a dingy back room or an unused cellar at the disposal of the teacher. Thus, through the back door, the community, through the synagogue, again re-appears as a force in Jewish education.

The Jewish school in its present form as an organized institution is young — it is less than 50 years old. Before the first decade of the present century, the only form of Jewish education available was that offered by the private tutor of the private cheder.

The earliest organized Jewish school in Toronto was the religious Sunday School conducted by the Holy Blossom Temple. It was organized before 1900. The educational needs of the rest of the community were served by private tutors engaged by individuals to give religious instruction to the children of one family, or by men who gathered a number of children into their homes and there conducted a cheder.

In 1907 the Toronto Hebrew School opened its doors on Simcoe Street, and in 1915 the Talmud Torah Eitz Chaim was founded. Organized Jewish education was here to stay. With the years, new and different types of schools were added, afternoon schools, Sunday schools, Yiddish schools, and the most recent development, full day schools.

The Jewish community in Toronto grew and expanded with the growth and expansion of the total community of which it is a part. In 1901 Toronto had a Jewish population numbering 3,090. By 1941, the year of the last Federal census, the Jewish population had increased to 49,046. That the Jewish population rapidly spread out and settled in new areas is best illustrated by the figures of a northern suburb of the city, Forest Hill Village. In the census of 1921, no Jewish residents were reported living in Forest Hill Village, but in 1941, this area had a Jewish population of 1,295 persons. The Jewish population of Forest Hill Village at the end of 1948 was estimated at 3,500 persons.

The physical growth of the Toronto Jewish community was accompanied by ever growing and expanding community services. Jewish educational institutions increased in size and in number. The 19 organized Jewish schools (many with more than one branch) now serving Toronto, are a far cry from the single Sunday School of 1900. Ideologically they repre-

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

An Impartial Medium for the Dissemination of Jewish News and Views

Florence F. Cohen, Editor
Lena A. Newman, Advertising Manager
George W. Cohen, Publisher
Rabbi H. J. Stern, Contributing Editor
Ida Illion, Toronto Manager

The Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

There is never guesswork about "approximate" circulation figures when you advertise in A.B.C. publications. Ask for a copy of our latest A.B.C. report.

Make Your Advertising a Real Business Investment

How to Know What You Get for Your Money

You advertise because you wish to talk to people about your merchandise or service. When you buy advertising in a newspaper or magazine what you are really paying for is an opportunity to talk to the people who buy and read that paper.

In order to know what you are getting for your money therefore, you should have certain facts about the paper's circulation. Think of this circulation as an audience to which you are talking about your business and remember that you are investing your money for the opportunity of reaching that audience. The success of your talk, the good that it will do your business, will depend not only on what you say but also on the size and make-up of your audience.

● Get these facts before you buy

How many people are in this audience that a newspaper or magazine offers you? Where do they live? How much paid circulation? How much is unpaid? Is some of the circulation sold at reduced prices or with premiums? How many subscribers are in arrears?

Before you invest in newspaper advertising or any publication advertising insist on the answers to these questions. Without such facts the money that you spend for advertising becomes a speculation instead of a good business investment.

● There are definite standards for circulation

Did you know that it is possible to buy newspaper or magazine advertising very much as you buy merchandise, that is, in accordance with well-known and approved standards of measurement? Instead of merely hoping that your advertising will go to the people that you wish to reach, there is a method of buying advertising so that you may use the right media and know just what you are getting for your money.

This safe method of advertising is by using the information that you will find in the reports issued by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, better known as A.B.C.

● How A.B.C. protects advertising

This Bureau is a national, co-operative association of 3,100 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. For thirty years these buyers and sellers of advertising have worked together in setting up and maintaining standards for measuring the circulation of newspapers and periodicals. The publisher members of the Bureau are required to meet these standards and to keep accurate records covering the distribution of their publication.

The Bureau has a large staff of skilled circulation auditors. Once a year these men visit every newspaper and periodical that is a member of A.B.C. to make an audit of the circulation records just as a bank examiner inspects the books and assets of your bank.

● The facts you need are in A.B.C. Reports

The information thus obtained is issued in A.B.C. Audit Reports, a specially printed report for each publication. With these reports it becomes possible for publishers to provide you as an advertiser with verified circulation data—the facts that are necessary for the success and protection of your advertising investments.

Publications with paid circulation are eligible for A.B.C. membership. The cost of publisher membership is moderate and is based on the size of the circulation so that even the smallest publication can easily afford this means of providing advertisers with verified circulation reports.

Before you buy advertising in a newspaper or any publication ask to see an A.B.C. Audit Report of the circulation. A.B.C. Reports are concise, easy to read and contain the facts that make it possible for you to say: "My advertising is a business investment. I have verified information about the circulation that carries my advertising. I know what I am getting for my money. I use A.B.C. Reports."

All Community Roads Lead To The New And Greater 'Y', Leisure-Time Home Of All Groups In Montreal

BY MORDECAI KESSLER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE MONTREAL Y.M.-Y.W.H.A.

The Y.M. and the Y.W. are now joined as one, creating an organization to be known hereafter as the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association of Montreal (Y.M.-Y.W.H.A.).

All community roads now lead to the 'Y'. Town hall, parkway, recreation road, youth street, leadership lane, education avenue, and democracy boulevard merge into the broad highway of community service at whose gateway stands the Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. Truly, the 'Y' may be called the crossroads of the Jewish community.

With the completion of its new building on Westbury and Cote St. Catherine Road, and its renovated building on Mount Royal Avenue, the two buildings with their complete facilities will serve upwards from 15,000 boys and girls, men and women, of all ages. The new building will be dedicated some time during the fall, the exact date to be announced soon by Mr. Moe Leavitt, Chairman of the Building Committee.

The 'Y' has been serving the Jewish community of Montreal for forty years. Its program and philosophy are known to many. We are desirous of calling its activities to the attention of many new friends and potential members. This article will try to describe what the 'Y' is all about in a general way and how it serves its members as well as the total community.

The 'Y' is an institution created by the Jewish community to provide for its leisure time, cultural, general recreational and health needs. The 'Y' as a Jewish community center is a unique organizational contribution to Jewish life on this continent. Because it is a product of the New World, the 'Y' has become a major instrumentality for the continuation of a healthy Jewish community life that cuts across all ideological and organizational lines.

Dedicated to creative and positive Jewish survival, the commonly accepted program of the 'Y' serves Jews as individuals and as members of the Jewish group. Its goal is to foster democratic and creative Jewish living within the framework and in the spirit of democratic traditions.

Fundamentally, the 'Y' is the community's answer to the need for building a generation of Jews who see no conflict in being Jewish, but, on the contrary, recognize the desirability of harmonizing and synthesizing two great forces for an expanding civilization in America. The essence of the 'Y's program is to provide the Jew with an enriching experience which makes him a better Jew and a better citizen of Canada and therefore a more useful and happier individual.

The Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. as a Jewish Community Center is organized by and for the Jewish community. The 'Y' belongs to no group but to the community as a whole. In its membership and in the community needs it meets, the 'Y' aims to be fully democratic because it is representative of the Jewish community and in tune with its needs.

Membership in the 'Y' is open to all Jews regardless of age, sex, economic status, social affiliation, religious belief, organizational ties, or country of origin. Seeking to reach and enlist the active participation of every member of the community in order to fulfill its function as the center of Jewish life, the 'Y's membership is a representative cross section of the community it serves.

All members are expected to pay an annual fee but inability to pay bars no one. Last year more than 600 persons including many New Canadians received membership scholarships. Membership categories vary as do fees. Membership provides participation in all activities and all facilities. Membership carries with it all privileges of the use of the gymnasium and swimming pool; library, lounges, Health Club, social clubs and activities.

But whatever the character of the membership, all adult members have equal status and rights in voting for Board directors and officers. Younger members share in the democratic process through club councils.

In serving the community the 'Y's approach is as broad as its membership. Competing with no agency in the community and supplementing the work of all, the 'Y' takes no sides on issues that divide the Jewish community. But it does encourage a constructive educational program on all Jewish and general issues, often leading to possible action through the Canadian Jewish Congress, where the Jewish community is affected and united, and to a joining of forces with other agencies, such as the Montreal Council of Social Agencies on matters of general concern. As the community's open forum

THE UNIVERSITY

BY ALLAN BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, NATIONAL PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN FRIENDS OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY

"Before him lie the books in which all the deeds of all men are inscribed."

As the Day of Judgment approaches, we Jews universally prepare to examine into our souls, our hearts and our minds. In the process of observing Rosh Hashonah, we must well note our deeds, for our past conduct lives on not only in us but in the lives of those about us, and ultimately in the collective experience of all mankind.

We saved what remained of our brothers. Many of them went to the "land of the Jews" and have begun what has to be. Their deeds are of many parts. An army? Yes, a people's army! Land? Yes, land enriched by the blood and labour of these heroes . . . a people's soil! Yes, and industry and science and education for all free men, not only for Jews.

This concept is the inspiring truth which lies behind the idea of Rosh Hashonah as a day of judgment — the solemn and literal truth that whatever we have thought or done lives on in us, in others and in society as a whole. One of our people's deeds was the creation of a University in Palestine. This tree of knowledge was planted twenty-five years ago by the far-seeing. After years of growing strong roots, research into every aspect of science, it bore an amazing crop in time for the climax of the struggle for a homeland. The teachers, the students, the graduates and the body of knowledge developed by the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, joined to help raise Israel to statehood and the people of Palestine to a better life.

During hostilities, sanitation teams cut down disease. Scientific farming squads found life-giving water and demonstrated more productive food-growing. Educators brought a common language to many of varied tongues and held cultural forums among bursting shells. The University's faculty and students stood in the front line of battle. They manned the Army's scientific section, its medical section, its intelligence and education services. They responded to the great need for trained personnel to carry out the tasks of government.

Now it is clear this University must develop further each of her faculties and establish new ones required by the new State and its people.

The Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School, born in May, will produce the first Doctors of Medicine ever to be graduated in Israel. A School of Law must be established to make available experts on Israeli jurisprudence. The social problems resulting from absorption of tens of thousands of immigrants emphasize the essentiality of expanding the Department of Social Science and Economics. This Department will train Government officials and employees for public and economic institutions.

Upon the University's return to her historic home on Mount Scopus, a city must be built, University City, for students and faculty from many lands, a population whose language and culture will be absorbed to the necessary advantage of Israel.

Two brilliant scholars from Israel have just arrived in Canada personally to relate the vibrant facts of Israel and the University. Professor Adolf Reifenberg, a veteran of three wars, is a Major in the Israeli Army and an internationally known agricultural scientist and archaeologist. He is visiting the Maritime Provinces, accompanied by Mrs. Reifenberg. During October, Professor Reifenberg will tour Ontario. Dr. Nathan Morris, widely known in the Anglo-Saxon world as a Hebrew educator, lecturer and author, will travel throughout the West and several Ontario communities during late September and October, together with Mrs. Morris. We Jews, privileged to hear these outstanding personalities, will enjoy the prac-

your Style-line
your bust-line

There is a key to style, so easy to get, so important to have. A young firm bust-line is a basic need, a "Perma-lift"* bra will do so much to help you achieve it easily, comfortably. In a "Perma-lift" bra the famous cushion insets at the base of the bra cups gently support your bust from below, retain that support through countless washings and wear. A "Perma-lift" bra is so utterly unlike any other bra that you'll experience a new thrill the first time you wear it. Ask for a "Perma-lift" bra today at your favorite corset department. Moderately priced.

*"Perma-lift" and "Hickory" are trademarks of A. Stein & Company (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.).

THE KOSHER SALAD & COOKING OIL

For many years chéfs, in all parts of Canada, have shown a preference for MAZOLA—connoisseurs of delicious, salad dressings or mayonnaise appreciate the fine quality of Mazola. Mazola, made from sun-ripened corn, mixes easily with other necessary ingredients and imparts a distinctive and delightful flavour to salad dressings.

Mazola is unequalled for deep frying or sauteing and is most economical to use, as it can be used over and over again without carrying the odor or flavour of one food to another.

Have you tried Mazola for lighter, fluffier cakes? Send for Recipe Sheet MA-2 containing Mazola Cake Recipes.

Order MAZOLA from your grocer in sealed tins, three popular sizes, with pouring spout.

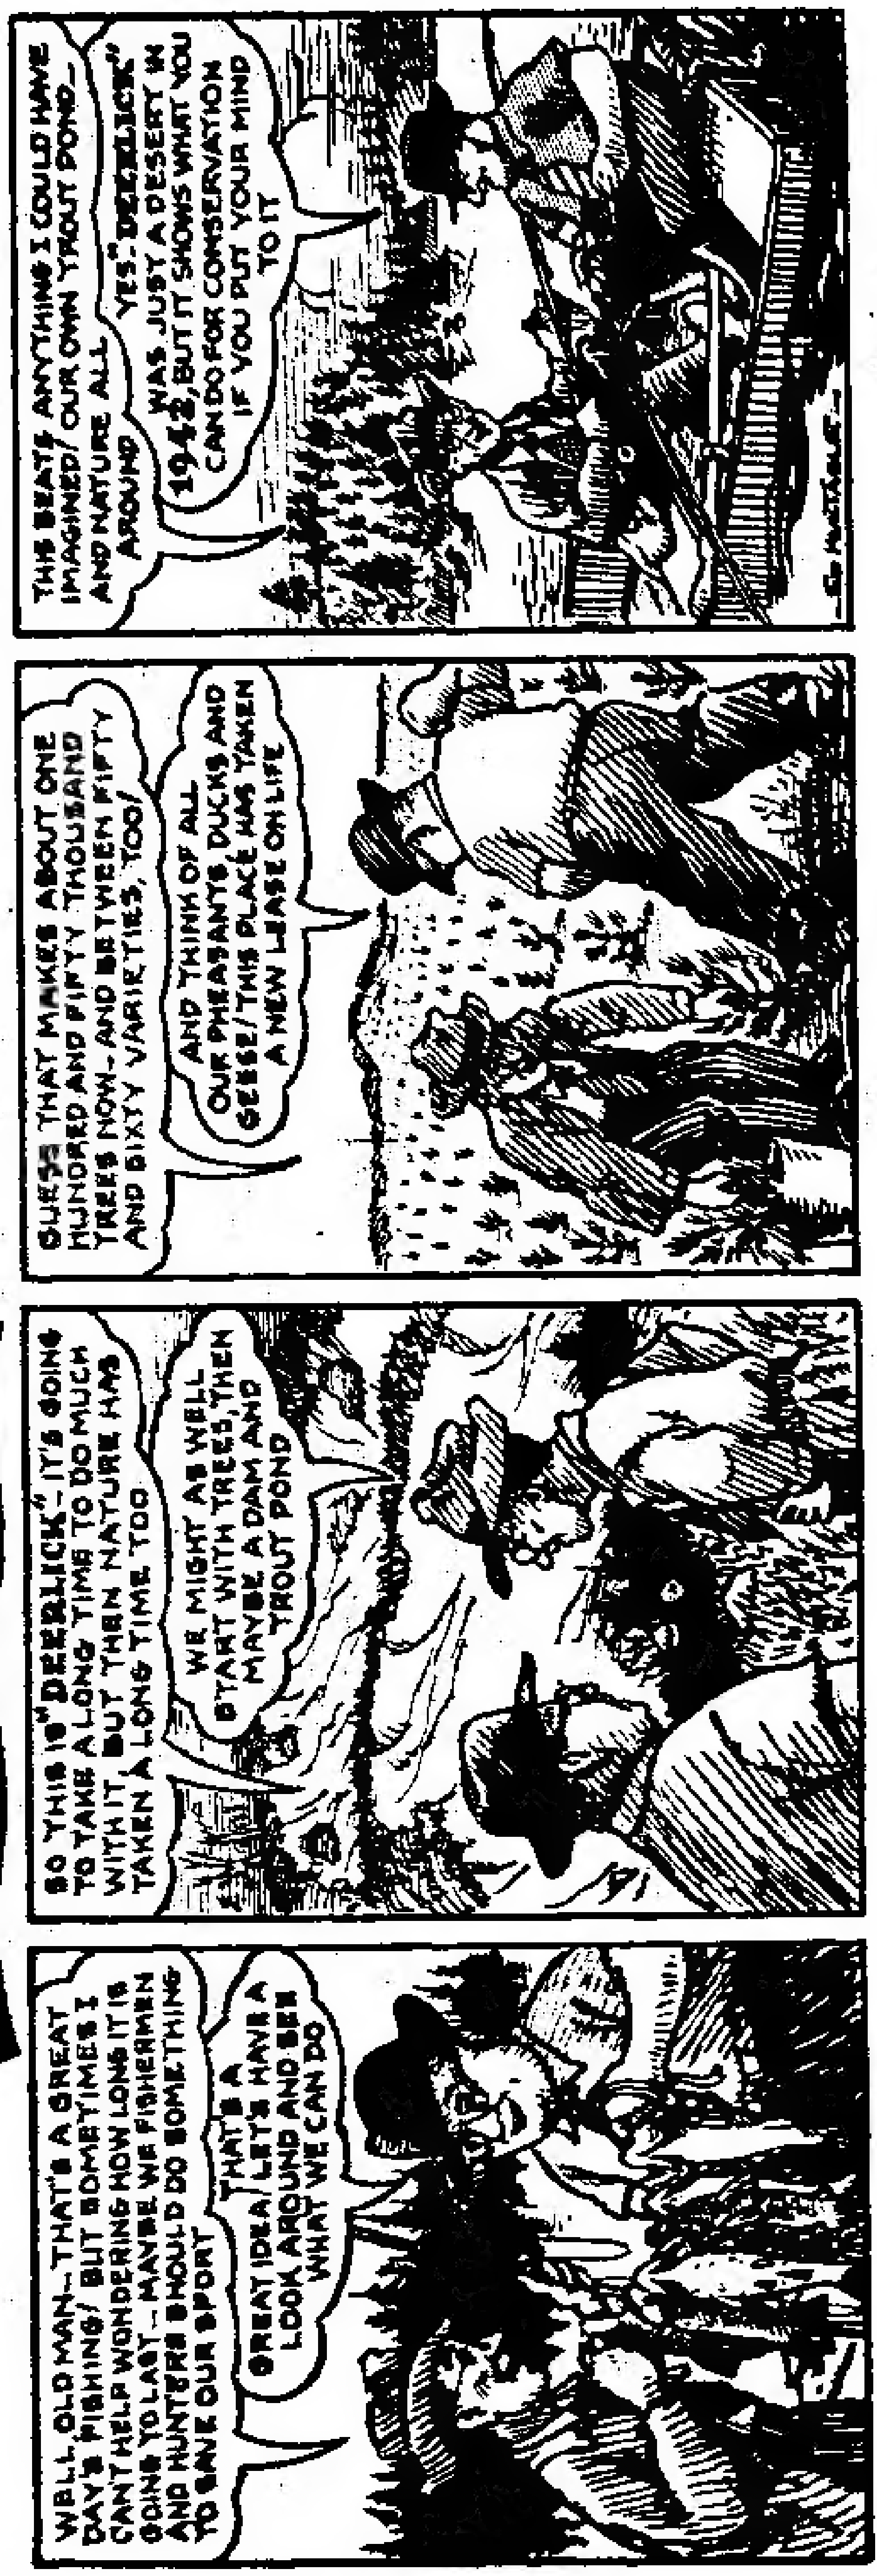
CARLING'S CONSERVATION CORNER



WELL, OLD MAN—THAT'S A GREAT DAY'S FISHING! BUT SOMETIMES I CAN'T HELP WONDERING HOW LONG IT IS GOING TO LAST—MAYBE WE FISHERMEN AND HUNTERS SHOULD DO SOMETHING TO SAVE OUR SPORT
THAT'S A GREAT IDEA! LET'S HAVE A LOOK AROUND AND SEE WHAT WE CAN DO
SO THIS IS "DEERLICK"! IT'S GOING TO TAKE A LONG TIME TO DO MUCH WITH IT, BUT THEN NATURE HAS TAKEN A LONG TIME, TOO
WE MIGHT AS WELL START WITH TREES, THEN MAYBE A DAM AND TROUT POND
GUESS THAT MAKES ABOUT ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND TREES NOW—AND BETWEEN FIFTY AND SIXTY VARIETIES, TOO!
AND THINK OF ALL OUR PHEASANTS, DUCKS AND GEESE! THIS PLACE HAS TAKEN A NEW LEASE ON LIFE
THIS BEATS ANYTHING I COULD HAVE IMAGINED! OUR OWN TROUT POND—AND NATURE ALL AROUND
YES—"DEERLICK" WAS JUST A DESERT IN 1942 BUT IT SHOWS WHAT YOU CAN DO FOR CONSERVATION IF YOU PUT YOUR MIND TO IT

A. S. Wagner and F. S. Scarrow of Delhi, Ontario, deserve the highest praise for their contribution to conservation. Their efforts have made a beauty spot of once worthless land.

HANDS IN TRAINING... FOR ONTARIO

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy — that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

tical opportunity to observe our New Year by supporting that citadel of learning, Israel's only university, the Hebrew University.

No support is too costly for a people who have come so far, whether in the form of membership in the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University or scholarships for future statesmen, administrators, doctors, educators and scientists, or grants for laboratories, student residences. Our science and knowledge shall be shared with all peoples. All nations and races shall know what the Jew is doing today, and what he will do tomorrow to help build a better world.

CANADIAN JEWRY

We are thankful for this opportunity, for which we have long prayed, as well as for the circumstances which enabled us to welcome in similar circumstances thousands of other Jews from overseas who entered Canada to join their relatives here or under the special schemes which our government sponsored for the entry of tailors, furriers, milliners, lumber workers, domestics, nurses, and rabbinical students.

This distinct turn in the affairs of our people during the past year was made possible by the moral and financial support of every Jew in the community. We are also grateful for the foresight and generosity which inspired our people and facilitated the establishment and securing of Israel, the liquidation of the D.P. camps, the immigration and settlement of Jews in Canada, and our continued support of the needy of our people in Europe and elsewhere.

The armistice has given way to a nearly universal conviction that the state of Israel is firmly established and that it can and will establish harmonious and friendly relations with its neighbours. The peoples of the world have accepted Israel in the United Nations and many efforts are being made to protect its quiet and stability.

May we each of us find the stature and the idealism which the challenge of these times demands for the preservation of peace, the restoration of the stricken of our people, the securing of the fundamental right to which all free men are entitled, and the strengthening of the spirit of mankind.

ALL COMMUNITY ROADS LEAD TO THE NEW AND GREATER 'Y'

and town hall, the 'Y' provides the platform from which all views are heard. Under its auspices all positive manifestations of Jewish life find expression.

Because Jewish unity and survival constitute the only ideology of the 'Y', it is the natural bridge that links Jews of all shades of opinion. In the 'Y' they meet on equal ground. Through participation in the 'Y' program they learn to work together for common purposes. Many members of the 'Y' participate actively in the Combined Jewish Appeal and United Israel Appeal drives as well as general community drives.

This unique opportunity for shared experience makes the 'Y' the community's school for training qualified leaders who are sympathetic and understanding Jews and for imbuing them with a sense of responsibility to, and affiliation with, the community as a whole. Organizations of every kind use the 'Y' for annual meetings, conventions, conferences, etc.

Its broad educational activities make the 'Y' the community's cultural focal point. Through its leisure time recreational health programs, the 'Y' is a community club house where youth and adults go for much of their social life. It is the community's place of assembly for community-wide events, both Jewish and general. The 'Y' is a spiritual focus, too, as the 'Y' houses a synagogue and library as well.

People of all ages join the 'Y'. They join for a variety of reasons. Children belong because they want a place to play — a game room or gym during the year or in the Urban Camp in the summer time. But the 'Y' does more than provide a "place to play." It provides trained leadership and interested adult volunteer service to give direction and purpose to the child's participation, thereby increasing the child's enjoyment and benefit derived from the activity. Children are encouraged to express themselves creatively — in the arts and crafts workshop, in the sewing class, in the dramatics group, in dancing, in every way that develops their latent talents and responds to their real interests. A Nursery School for pre-school children is being organized as well as a play group for younger children at Mount Royal Avenue.

Children, being normal, like to be among friends and engage in group activities. Hence the 'Y' emphasizes club work, or, as it is now known more generally — group work. A good group, under a good leader, has the greatest possibilities for personality development of its members. In the group they learn to get along with each other, to work together on all kinds of programs and projects, to shed shyness and to submerge aggressiveness and desire for domination. They make friends, sometimes for life. They come under the subtle but very real influence of a leader who helps shape their behaviour, their ideas and their ideals. They learn from the content of the club or group program. Their Jewish knowledge is enlarged and they join with other groups in learning about Jewish customs, ceremonies, holidays and great Jewish personalities. The program lasts the year round. The group activities and gym classes are arranged to supplement the formal Jewish education given by other schools.

Since the Jewish community of Montreal is growing out to the northwest area of the city, the new 'Y' building will bring the program to a larger membership. Children who formerly could not come because of distance can now benefit from activities together with their parents and older brothers and sisters. The 'Y' looks upon itself as a community-wide organization, available to serve all people of the Jewish community.

The 'Y' appeals very strongly to the youth and young adults of both sexes. For them it is a "clubhouse", a social center, a recreation center, a gymnasium, an educational institution, a center of Jewish activity. It is their leisure-time home, offering opportunities for meeting friends, for wholesome enjoyment, for useful participation in activities, for discussions of current problems, for reading books and periodicals of special interest, for listening to recordings or to the radio or to a lecture.

Young adults constitute a large group among the users of the gymnasium and swimming pool. The 'Y' encourages them to maintain health and bodily vigor through a well-directed program of sports and exercise. Health examinations are given and the advice of trained instructors is always available. Those who have aptitude for sports join teams and engage in intramural and extra-mural amateur competition. The 'Y' Basketball Team attained international fame when it represented Canada in the last Olympic Games held in England.

Young people are interested in their future. They are concerned about vocations and get advice and direction in selecting and preparing for their careers. They are guided into Center activities that will develop their abilities and talents or overcome personality difficulties. They are, as a group, interested in the current scene — in political, social, economic issues. They follow closely the developments in international relationships. They are vitally interested, as Jews, in the fate of European Jewry and in the future of Israel. They are naturally idealistic, eager to understand the meaning of events and to express themselves in discussions, debates and in affiliations with like-minded groups and individuals. The 'Y' provides these opportunities through forums, clubs, councils of clubs and community councils, such as the Montreal Jewish Youth Council, in which other youth groups join. Staff members work directly with youth and young adults in this vital field of their interests.

People have a natural desire for social activity. The program of the 'Y' includes many opportunities for socializing — the games rooms, the attractive lounges, youth canteens and refreshment counter, the many parties and dances, celebrations of Jewish and national holidays, outings and picnics in the summer that allow for the maximum of initiative in planning and conduct of the activity.

There is also encouragement to young people to develop special interests — journalism through participation in the house newspaper, The Beacon; hobbies in crafts, photography, dramatics, singing, playing in the orchestra, Jewish studies, minstrel and variety show, club newspaper and many other activities. A number of men and women also develop qualities of leadership, serving on committees and leading clubs, Scout troops and other groups. Indeed, the 'Y' is one of the principal sources for the training of leadership for Jewish and civic activities and many present-day leaders in the community are the products of this process.

The 'Y' is the place where many community events are held — mass meetings, Jewish Book Month and Music Month Festivals, annual meetings of communal organizations, the headquarters of other community functions. The auditorium is a continuous round of public events. Here people come to the Lecture Forum, the concert series, the performances of the 'Y' Little Theatre Group, the large holiday celebrations, the 'Y' dinners and receptions, High Holyday services.

It is impossible to catalogue all of the rich variety of activities that are conducted by the 'Y'. They are limited only by the resources of facilities, staff and funds. Certainly every effort is made to serve all groups of all ages in a balanced program designed to meet the needs of the Jewish groups and individuals for constructive use of their leisure and for the development of their interests, loyalties and participation in Jewish life.

A NEW AGENCY PLANS THE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

sent every shade of opinion from the ultra-Orthodox Yeshivah M'ril Graubart to the Morris Winchefsky School. At present, more than 3,500 students are in attendance in these schools. From the first each of these schools was an individual entity. Each had its unique educational philosophy and each had a distinct goal at which it aimed. Many of the schools were institutional in character, that is, they were affiliated with a parent organization which provided them with their philosophy and finances.

With the organization of Division II — (the Division concerned with Jewish education) of the United Jewish Welfare Fund in 1937, a new era opened for Jewish education in Toronto. In keeping with the prevailing trend throughout America, the Toronto Jewish community squarely faced the fact that Jewish education in addition to being a parental organizational responsibility is also a community responsibility. The eminent educator, Israel B. Rappaport, expressed this idea cogently, "Jewish education is essential both for the well-being of the individual Jew and for the welfare of the entire group... In its concern for wholesome personality development of Jews, the community must try to impress all of its constituents with the sense of responsibility for the Jewish education of their children. That same concern dictates the need for the community to provide the facilities for such an education."

The Jewish community, through the United Jewish Welfare Fund, accepted this responsibility. The financial resources of the Jewish community were made available to the educational institutions. Proper facilities were assured, salaries were raised, and consequently there was a notable rise in standards and performance.

Ever since its inauguration in 1937, the Welfare Fund of Toronto has financed programs of Jewish education; in its first campaign, it included only one school, the Toronto Hebrew Free School. Since that time, the number has grown to nine, and to include the Associated Hebrew Schools (including the Toronto Hebrew Free School, Beth Hayeled, Beth Sholom and Shaar Hashomayim branches) — the Beth Yehuda Talmud Torah, the Borochov School, Euclid Avenue Talmud Torah, Jewish National Workers Alliance Schools, Talmud Torah Eits Chaim, Morris Winchefsky Schools, Workmen's Circle Schools and the Yeshivah Torath Chaim.

During the past years, a concerted effort has been made to raise and standardize the tuition fees being paid by parents for their children's education. Today, over thirty-one percent of the income of the schools is derived from tuition fees, the second largest source of income.

The 1949 allocation for Jewish Educational institutions in Toronto of the United Jewish Welfare Fund is $152,400, which includes a sum for one-half year's administration of the newly formed Central Bureau of Jewish Education. However, the community in accepting this new responsibility wanted to be assured that the educational needs of the Jewish community were being met properly and efficiently. In its expansion and growth the community was experiencing new needs, population shifts, and increased immigration called for increased services.

New trends in educational philosophy and new developments in educational techniques had to be kept abreast of. This called in the first instance, for an elaborate inventory and evaluation of present resources, and then for qualified interpretation of future trends, followed, finally, with recommendations for effective action.

In 1947, the Canadian Jewish Congress and United Jewish Welfare Fund, two organizations with long standing interests in Jewish education, proposed that an extensive survey be conducted to determine the educational resources and needs of the Toronto Jewish community. A commission of representatives of educational institutions and the community was organized for the purpose of sponsoring the survey. This commission appointed Dr. Uriah Z. Engelman, head of the Department of Research and Information of the American Association for Jewish Education as chief surveyor.

In July, 1948, Dr. Engelman submitted his preliminary report with these words: "There is no Jewish school system in Toronto in the community sense of the term. The existing schools operate without central coordination and frequently find themselves duplicating and competing with one another." The surveyor probed deep and came up with much valuable information. Many of the facts brought to light reflect credit on the Toronto community, others show just how completely certain needs have been neglected.

Only about 50% of the Jewish elementary school population attend some type of Jewish school. This compares favorably with the Jewish school enrolment of most American communities. Although this attendance is made up of 60% boys and 40% girls, these figures are deceiving if they are not examined with care. Thus the survey shows that despit these figures, there are no girls in attendance in the 6th and 7th grades in any of the weekday afternoon Hebrew schools. Further, in these schools more than 82% of those attending are boys. More than half of the enrolment of these schools is found in kindergarten and first two grades. Some 900 children are enrolled in the Congregational Sunday Schools. Here the sexes are more evenly distributed.

One of the most depressing findings of the survey is that the median attendance in all the Jewish schools in Toronto was only for a period of about two years. In the Yiddish schools the median attendance is 18 months, in the Sunday Schools it is about 25 months. In some cases as many as 42% of the students attend for periods of less than six months. The cost of running the schools (exclusive of Sunday Schools) is more than $240,000 per year of which over $150,000 is being provided by the United Jewish Welfare Fund.

Adult education is sadly neglected in the Toronto Jewish com-risen to great heights of generosity, let us resolve now to rise to great spiritual heights that we and our children living outside of Israel may find meaning and content in our Jewish way of life.

On this Holy Day, we view not only the world and hope for a reconciliation among nations; on this day too, we look not only with joy upon the renascent Jewish state and pray for the revival of Jewish spiritual life throughout the world. On this day there is a personal fact which touches us deeply. We think of our individual self and the solemn realization that with each New Year we grow older, not younger; that each one of us is walking through the shadowed valley described by the ancient Psalmist. God grant that whatever be our lot as we make our pilgrimage on earth we may walk through the valley of life without fear.

May the New Year bring to mankind, to Israel, and to each one of us the splendor of hope and progress. Yeshonah Tovah!

munity. From time to time the Canadian Jewish Congress has sponsored institutes, and other organizations occasionally sponsor public lectures and concerts. The Keren Hatarbut conducts evening Hebrew classes, but it does not give courses in the wider aspects of Judaica and Hebraica. To fill this need, Dr. Engelman recommends that an Institute of Jewish Studies be organized as an integral part of the Jewish educational picture of Toronto.

In addition to fact finding, the survey also undertook an evaluation of the curricula, techniques, and organizational efficiency of the schools. He did so without resource to the familiar whitewash pail or tar-brush although he was aware that since the survey was an aspect of a social rather than a physical science, there existed a danger of some bias creeping in. It is generally conceded, however, that Dr. Engelman guarded well against this danger. Although not all agree with every detail of the survey and the recommendations, they have been accepted as the unbiased and competent work of a highly qualified scholar whose sole interest is to serve the Jewish community.

The essential recommendation of the surveyor upon which all others are based is the one calling for the establishment of a "central community agency for Jewish education, whose function will be to plan, promote, coordinate, guide, improve, help finance the on-going educational program in the community, as well as to plan to meet the educational needs of the community at present unprovided by existing institutions."

This recommendation, as all the others, is based on the understanding that the various ideologies of the different schools will be respected. Indeed, the recommended set-up of the central agency affirms this proposition.

In December, 1948, the Central Bureau on Jewish Education was formally inaugurated. With the original joint committee of the United Jewish Welfare Fund and the Canadian Jewish Congress acting as Nominating Committee, a Board of Trustees was elected. This Board is made up of 35 persons representing the member agencies of the Bureau, and 35 persons representing the community-at-large. An Advisory Pedagogic Council consisting of professionals representing the various educational institutions, will function in an advisory capacity and will cooperate closely in every aspect of the Bureau's work.

Thus, the two communal interests in Jewish education, as expressed through the Welfare Fund and the Canadian Jewish Congress have merged to create a new body which it is hoped will bring greater stability to the various programs of Jewish education and also a new recognition to their role in a community. The Welfare Fund has had a tradition of financial assistance and an interest in the improvement of standards; the Congress has made a rich and valuable contribution to the cultural life of Toronto and the province. It has arranged for and circulated recordings for the religious festivals; issued material for teaching purposes; sponsored Jewish Book Weeks and lectures by eminent scholars, and also held regional conferences for the discussion of local and national problems of Jewish education.

These two interests have converged to form the Central Bureau, the newest agency in the Jewish Community of Toronto. Under the pro-tem chairmanship of Samuel Posluns, the Central Bureau should be staffed by the end of this year and engaged in activities. This will be the second such Bureau in Canada — the first having been organized in Winnipeg just a few years ago. Supported by the Welfare Fund and the joint sponsorship of the Congress, and with a constituency of all the educational institutions of the community, it gives every reason for confidence in this new agency's role in this country.

Rabbi Answers Congress Director; Denies He Said Government Is Anti-Jewish In Immigration Matters

The following article is by Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, of Holy Blossom Temple, in Toronto; (Chairman, Joint Public Relations Committee, Canadian Jewish Congress Central Region and Bnai Brith):

On September 2nd I received a letter from Saul Hayes, Executive Director of the Canadian Jewish Congress. He took issue with my statement, made on the basis of an official document, that the Canadian Immigration authorities had advised the International Refugee Organization in Germany not to send Jews as nurses or domestics. At the conclusion of Mr. Hayes' letter, he warned me he would make a statement to the Yiddish and Anglo-Jewish press denying my "charge."

During this period, the Inter-Office Information bulletin of the Congress has re-printed from the general and Jewish press a series of reports and comments on the matter, with needlessly-elaborate assurances that in this instance I did not speak for the Congress, but only in a private capacity, and with obvious emphasis on the comments unfavorable to me. (A column by Ben-Tovim on the English page of the "Toronto Hebrew Journal" was extensively quoted, although it contained several misstatements of fact, while a regular editorial in the same paper, defending my position, was ignored entirely until the Secretary of the Joint Public Relations Committee, Ontario Region, under my instructions, sent the I.O.I. a memo and a copy of the "forgotten" editorial).

Despite this, I had faith that the entire question would be aired in a dignified and ethical way. The I.O.I. announced a meeting of the Congress Executive, at which my data would be examined with a view to deciding on further action. In order that Mr. Hayes might have this data available, I had already mailed him—on September 1st—some important material.

On September 6th, the "Canadian Jewish Eagle" published Mr. Hayes' letter of September 2nd, as a release from the Congress! This communication, addressed to me, had been circulated to the Jewish press of Canada—before the facts in my possession were requested or obtained, before the scheduled executive meeting and before the appearance of the statement Mr. Hayes had informed me he would make. (The letter, I assume, may be regarded as a substitute for the statement.)

Were I not certain of Mr. Hayes' personal integrity, I would question the motivation, as well as the propriety and good taste, of such a procedure. In any case, it has become necessary for me to publicize the complete facts (which, I had hoped, Mr. Hayes himself would disseminate through his projected article).

First, the document in which the International Refugee Organization was instructed to exclude "Jews and Armenians" from the Canadian nurse and domestic program is dated June 29th, 1949. (I have an exact copy.) Mr. Hayes referred in his letter to a similar directive "a year and a half ago or two years ago", after which the Congress had received "assurances" of equal admission-opportunities for Jewish domestics and nurses. He assumed more or less that the directive in my hands dates back to the negotiations two years past. Actually, the I.R.O. official in Germany showed me the shocking document on his own initiative, to procure some help in getting the Jews out of that country (since so many lands, as listed on the directive — Chile, Brazil, United Kingdom, Canada — had instituted a discriminatory policy).

Second, my statement in Paris was not made to, or at, a meeting of the World Jewish Congress, which I attended as representative of Canadian Jewish Congress. This error has been repeated over and over again in Jewish publications, despite Mr. Hayes' knowledge to the contrary, and with the implication that I had involved Canadian Jewry in a "charge" uttered solely on my personal responsibility.

Third, I consulted the Joint Distribution Committee offices in Munich and Paris, informing them of the document revealed to me by I.R.O. They did not interpose any objections to publication, and even hoped it might expedite the movement of Jewish D.P.'s out of Germany.

Fourth, "a general allegation of anti-Semitism", with which Mr. Hayes identifies me in his letter, never appeared in any statement of mine at any time. On the contrary, I was careful to point out, especially in a Toronto interview ("Globe and Mail", August 29, 1949), that (1) the I.R.O. directive may have been circulated by an underling in the overseas Immigration Service, without authorization; (2) my astonishment emanated chiefly from knowledge of the generous attitude towards Jewish immigration hitherto manifested by the Canadian government; (3) I would be delighted "beyond words" to be given a reasonable explanation of this apparent refusal to admit "Jews and Armenians" as nurses or domestics.

Fifth, the difference in "technique", as regards the approach to an immigration problem, is a matter of opinion, not of fact. How can anyone declare with absolute confidence that "silence", or "diplomacy", has brought Jewish Displaced Persons to this Dominion? Perhaps a more aggressive program would have saved more — at a time when opening the gates of Canada still meant salvation from the iron gates of the gas-chambers and crematoria (which I saw at Dachau)! For example, the Order-in-Council allowing convicted French (Nazi) collaborators to remain in Quebec: do you recall the famous incident some months ago? The storm aroused at that time, primarily as a result of my public denunciation, definitely brought more Jews into Canada. (Already the response of our government to the I.R.O. directive has changed, significantly, from forthright denial to a declaration of the intent to "investigate"!)

Three things are clear. (1) The State of Israel is being burdened with a colossal problem of "new" immigrant congestion. No one can visit the camps of the recent "Olim" in Israel without realizing the dangers of an uninterrupted, immediate influx; there must be at least a brief breathing spell. (2) No organized Jewish community, if possible not a single Jew, should be left in Germany against his desire. Every Jew there risks his safety, and becomes a potential scape-goat for re-infecting the world with neo-Nazi anti-Semitism. (3) Canada, territorially, economically and spiritually, offers a chance for a decent, secure and constructive life. Whatever any Canadian, Jew or Gentile, can do to promote the admission of Jewish D.P.'s ought to be attempted, as a benefit to our people overseas, and to our country here!

Now, a post-script in question form: By whose authority was the letter of Mr. Hayes sent to the press as an official release of Canadian Jewish Congress? The Montreal headquarters did not consult the National Executive (of which I am a member)! If Congress is governed by an inner circle or a bureaucracy, its claim to be the democratic instrument of Canadian Jewry must be reviewed.

BLUE DAMSON JAM

Wash and mash a quantity of blue Damson plums, crush until they are well broken up, and place in pot to cook, without any water added. When plums are well-moistened, add sugar, pound for pound with quantity of plums. Boil until mixture begins to thicken and jell, watching carefully to see that it does not burn. Pour into sterilized bottles, and cover with melted paraffin wax. This can be made easily in large or small quantities.

Mrs. Marcus M. Sperber,
4402 Western Avenue, Montreal.

ICE BOX COOKIES

three cups sifted cake flour
one-half pound butter
one-half pint sour cream
pinch salt

Cream butter into flour, add sour cream and pinch of salt. Knead well, wrap lump of dough in wax paper, place in refrigerator overnight. Next day roll into layer about one-quarter of the amount of dough, spread with jam, sprinkle with sugar and roll up like jelly roll. Slice into one-quarter inch thick cookies. Repeat this until all dough is used up, and place in greased cookie tin. Bake in 450-degree oven for fifteen or twenty minutes.

Removal Of Divisions Sought

A movement to do away with sectarianism in Jewish religious life in favor of a "universal synagogue" has begun at Paterson, N.J., with the establishment of a new Jewish congregation to be known as the Congregation Beth-El, which is being sponsored by a founding committee of ten Paterson residents.

The new congregation, which "will endeavor to strike a new note in Jewish religious life," has as its director, Rabbi Reuben Kaufman, who served as rabbi of the Temple Emanuel there for twenty years until his retirement in 1948. Temple Emanuel, one of Paterson's largest synagogues, is designated as Conservative, while the city's other large synagogue, the Barnert Memorial Temple, is designated as Reform. There are several smaller Orthodox synagogues there.

In discussing the establishment of the new Beth-El congregation, Rabbi Kaufman said that it was planned to follow the "traditional Jewish religion, which goes back before the Reform movement began in Berlin, Germany, in 1800."

"The time has come," he added, "for the reorientation of Jewish religious philosophy. The time has come to scrap the labels Orthodoxy, Conservatism, Reform, Reconstruction, and 'what-have-you' in Jewish religious life.

"With the exception of minor local customs which exist even today among Jews coming from various parts of the world, there are no issues of serious character that warrant the fragmentation of Jewish congregation life into sects which only create confusion and chaos and befog the minds of the people as to what is or is not Jewish practice and Jewish law."

Rabbi Kaufman asserted that the differences of opinion existing in connection with the form that the Jewish religion should take should be discussed and a decision reached by the democratic process of voting, rather than by "breaking away."

Did you ever notice that the people who are hard to fluster, the ones who don't get in a stew about minor troubles, are the people who keep youngest longest? Wise people know that a calm outlook on life pays off. "Fuss budgets" threaten the comfort and health of everyone around them as they work themselves up to a nervous breakdown.

Was Leader In U.S. Child Care

Mary E. Boretz, a pioneer in the child care field, who advocated extending foster home care, rather than institutional care, for dependent children, died in New York, in Mount Sinai Hospital after a long illness. Her age was 55.

Miss Boretz, who in private life was Mrs. Henry Friedman, lived at 240 Central Park South. Her husband, Dr. Friedman, is medical director of the Foster Home Department of the Jewish Child Care Association.

Born in New York and a graduate of the University of Colorado, Miss Boretz was in the child-care field for more than thirty years, twenty-seven of them as executive director of the Foster Home Bureau — now a part of the Jewish Child Care Association. She resigned at the end of 1945 as director to serve as consultant to the association.

Miss Boretz was a member of the 1940 White House Conference on "Children in a Democracy," which was attended by leading child psychologists and others in the child-care field from all over the country. She was a member of the executive committee of the Child Welfare League of America, a consultant on child care to the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York and a director of the Child Adoption Committee.

Miss Boretz also was a member of the Advisory Committee on Social Service for Children of the Children's Bureau in Washington, a vice-president of the National Jewish Conference of Social Work, a vice-president of the New York State Conference of Social Work and a member of the committee of the Welfare Council of New York. Surviving besides her husband is a daughter, Mrs. Annesta Gardner.

ANTI-ZIONISTS MAY LEAVE ISRAEL

The Netueri Kara, or Watchmen of the City, a small minority group of ultra-Orthodox anti-Zionist Jews, may leave the state of Israel.

This was disclosed by their leader, Rabbi Amram Blau. He said adherents of the Netueri Kara had given up hope for the internationalization of Jerusalem, and now wanted to cross the line into the Arab-held Old City of Jerusalem, or, if that were impossible, to emigrate to the United States.

He said he had requested the Msgr. Thomas J. McMahon, of New York, president of the newly-created Pontifical Mission for Palestine, to "sound out" Arab authorities on the possibility of having the Watchmen transfer to their jurisdiction. The Watchmen recently protested against Jews driving automobiles or smoking on the streets during the Sabbath.

N.Y. City Says Garment Makers Cold To Traffic Help

With traffic conditions in the garment area "tragic" and all remedies having failed because of the apathy of the industry, the Traffic Commission indicated that any future plans would be aimed at containing the paralysis within the snarled zone.

"It is terrible to have to admit it," John C. Riedel, chairman of the agency said, "but as long as the manufacturers don't seem to want to be helped, there is little that can be done to untangle the mess."

Conceding that the tentacles of the garment center's traffic ills extended far beyond its half-mile sector into which 23,000,000 square feet of manufacturing space are crammed, Mr. Riedel said the Department of Traffic Engineering would concentrate on the outer fringes in hopes of affording some little relief there.

T. T. Wiley, executive director of the department, reported that the over-all plan for easing congestion in Manhattan would help the garment industry in spite of itself. He stressed that the new Port Authority bus terminal at Fortieth-Forty-first Street, from Eighth to Ninth Avenue, would end the coursing of 2,500 buses through the core of mid-Manhattan; plans for speeding movement on longitudinal routes were in operation now and other "little things" are to be tried to free clogged streets.

Since the $3,000,000,000 industry, the city's largest, settled en masse in the Upper Thirties between Broadway and Ninth Avenue, many attempts have been made to alleviate the traffic congestion that followed in its wake. The latest plan of staggered pick-ups and deliveries over a fifteen-hour period was called a dismal failure. The factory heads it was designed to help would not cooperate, the commission said.

Talking with some of them recently disclosed that they were completely indifferent to the problem of traffic, an official said. "So if it costs a little more to do business," one of them said, "we can make it up by cutting a little off a dress here, a cheaper trimming there." The consensus was that it was a better system than getting up early and working late.

This official said members of the industry dismissed its effect on neighboring areas as no concern of theirs and, while agreeing that traffic congestion cost money, insisted that the only direct levy was in added trucking charges. A check with leading truckers indicated that drivers were collecting about $11,000 a day for sitting on vans while waiting for a place at the curb to load or unload.

The manufacturers have resisted all attempts at decentralization, according to Mr. Riedel, who recalled that a number of years ago the city offered to develop moderate-cost housing, bright clean lofts and other incentives to lure a part of the industry to less crowded parts of the city.

He conceded that suggestions for drastic regulations to ease congestion, such as night trucking, always have been vetoed upon final analysis by administration fear of driving away the thriving industry.

The ubiquitous hand carts also play a part in traffic havoc but Mr. Riedel said he was as deeply puzzled as to what could be done about them as the over-all problem. The highly competitive nature of the industry also contributes to congestion, he added, with everything geared to close access to shipping centers. The General Post Office, Pennsylvania Station and the Railway Express Agency's main depot all are on the outskirts of the garment area.

Even the harried traffic policemen, who are concentrated more heavily in the garment area than in any other daytime business zone, shrug when asked to suggest a remedy. It is the slack season now in the industry and their task is comparatively light. Traffic on Seventh Avenue, for example, only backs up into Times Square, they say.

N.Y. JUDGE SHOCKED BY ISRAELI CAMPS

Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, who spent ten weeks in Europe and the Middle East, described conditions in the reception centers for immigrants in Israel as "shocking and disgraceful."

"Communism feeds and prospers on misery," he said. "Agitators are circulating among the people. Many of the 300,000 anticipated immigrants may start new lives not as pioneers but as malcontents and enemies of the state, unless something is done to relieve their suffering."

Declaring that medical facilities were inadequate, and sickness and death prevalent, he went on: "Is it any wonder that under such conditions crime has already increased, and juvenile delinquency jumped 1,000 per cent in the past year?"

He urged greater support for the United Jewish Appeal, extension of Marshall Plan aid to Israel and increased private investment there.

Miss Carla Polak, of Holland, and Miss Lisetta Pesaro, of Italy, who studied social work on scholarships granted them by the National Council of Jewish Women, returned to work among the Jewish children in their homelands. Miss Pesaro will organize the social work program of Italian OSE which serves the Jewish children of Italy, applying the training she received at the University of Toronto, in trying to coordinate the work of all the OSE homes, camps and schools which serve the Jewish war-orphans and children whose families cannot maintain them. Miss Polak, who received her master's degree in psychiatric social work at the George Warren Brown School of Social Work in St. Louis, Missouri, plans to work in a child guidance clinic in Holland or Belgium. Seventeen of the 39 scholarship students who have been brought to the U.S. and Canada by National Council of Jewish Women have already returned to France, Holland, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Portugal, Poland, and Greece. Other countries from which students have been selected include Israel, Argentina, Brasil, and French Morocco.

WOMAN SOCIAL WORKER STARTED 10,000 TO SCHOOL WITH ONE MOTHER

It was in 1904. The trustee of the Educational Alliance in the Lower East Side, America's largest settlement house, looked down his nose at the young red head with the eager blue eyes. She was applying for the position of director of women's and children's activities there.

"My dear," the trustee exclaimed, "you're a little society girl. And besides, you're much too young."

Society girl or no, Sarah Elkus' red hair should have indicated to the trustee that he was dealing with a person whose persistence and vivacity would let nothing stand in the way of her choice of vocation. She carried her fight to other trustees. Finally the late Miss Julia Richman conceded: "Well, we'll have to give the society girl a try."

Miss Elkus recalled the incident as trustee and a vice-president. She is rounding out forty-five years service with the Alliance and is regarded as somewhat of a pioneer in social work. Perhaps her greatest pride is the series of English classes she began, says the New York Times. Miss Elkus, in her home in the Madison Hotel, told the story of the public school graduation she attended downtown.

"A woman in the audience was crying. A little girl had just finished an eloquent valedictory speech which the audience had applauded loudly. Surely there could be no cause for tears. I asked the woman why she wept. 'Are you ill?' 'No,' she replied in Yiddish, 'that is my daughter and I am unable to understand her.' There was no place for this woman to learn English."

Miss Elkus invited the woman to the Alliance. She brought two friends. The second day there were ten pupils in the makeshift class, the third day eighteen. Then the Board of Education learned of her work, and in 1915 she was appointed director of English and citizenship classes for the board. When she retired in 1938 there were 10,000 in the classes.

The respect the children gained for their foreign-born parents through these classes was prodigious, Miss Elkus explained. "The children were very proud of their mothers and helped them with their studies. One little boy, on being late at school one morning was asked the reason. "I had to help my mother with her home work,' he said, 'she had to take an examination'."

Another project in which she takes an intimate and continuing interest is the Camp Salomon at Holmes, Dutchess County. August 10 was Sarah Elkus Day there in honor of her founding the camp eighteen years ago. The women and children, who had received the short reprieve from crowded tenements, pressed around to pay her homage and letters of congratulations poured in from all over the country. Miss Elkus' history is one of indomitable activity. Even when she was hospitalized once for three months she was unable to forget her work.

On the more serious side she expressed a few fears for the field of social work.

"I'm afraid that social work may become factory work," she said. "People take it merely as a job. It's grown so big — there's not enough heart."

Asked for her definition of a good social worker, Miss Elkus thought solemnly for a moment before she said: "One who is interested in the betterment in every way of the person who comes to him for help; one who uses the best material available to help these people become better citizens. From my experience that is a good definition."

Poets have often exalted the virtues of cold, still pools of crystal clear water, but few poets have tested the bacteria content of these same pools. Drinking from open pools, brooks or streams is always dangerous. Just because they are clear and sparkling is not an indication they are safe.

Forty plus and anchored behind a desk? Chances are you need regular exercise to keep that waistline under control. This doesn't mean you should race through three fast sets of tennis every evening and knock off a mile on the cinder track before breakfast. But moderate, regular exercise is needed to keep up muscle tone. Try walking to work each morning as a starter.

U.S. Warns Arabs, Jews About Aid

The United States has decided to warn Israel and the Arab nations that unless they get together now on a settlement of their problems that nation cannot continue to underwrite aid for Palestine's 940,000 Arab refugees, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

The decision was reached after Paul A. Porter, American representative of the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission, reported to President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson that the commission has made almost no progress in the refugee and territorial questions which divide the two sides.

Israel and the Arabs will be told, in effect:

1. That the plight of the refugees—regardless of old arguments about who caused it—constitutes a dangerous current situation for all the nations involved, that the problem must be dealt with, and that it is up to those nations to deal with it.

2. That unless they come up with a constructive plan for repatriation and resettlement, the United States can only take the position that further food and housing for the refugees, when present funds expire November 1, is the responsibility of neither this country nor the U. N.

3. That if a construction plan is agreed upon, this government can conscientiously ask the U. N. —and Congress—for more money to help finance the program.

The United States view is that repatriation and resettlement of the refugees conceivably could be planned to strengthen the economic structure of the entire Middle East, a project in which that nation could participate wholeheartedly. An indefinite dole for displaced persons, however, would be out of the question.

While Mr. Porter was able to report little more than the old frustration in his visit to Washington, there was some evidence that he is returning to Lausanne with hope that a break can come there in the deadlocked negotiations. One fact was that in recent days—if only to discuss release of frozen funds—Arabs have consented to sit at the same conference table with Israelis for the first time.

Another was that the commission is scheduled to report to the U. N. General Assembly next month, and that neither Arabs nor Israelis can afford charges that they have obstructed the conciliation effort or flouted the Assembly's resolution ordering a settlement.

On specific issues to date, the United States is satisfied neither with the Arabs nor the Israelis. Ambassador Eliahu Elath discussed Israel's current position with Assistant Secretary of State George McGhee, but told reporters afterward that Israel cannot go beyond her offer to repatriate 100,000 Palestine Arabs, including about 25,000 who, he said, have re-entered Israel illegally, and others admitted to reunite broken families.

The United States views such a proposal as unrealistic, in view of the large number of refugees. The furthest the Arabs have gone is to agree to resettle those refugees who do not wish to return to Palestine, while insisting on the right of entry for those who elect to reclaim their homes.

Mr. Elath told reporters that the recent coup d'état in Syria is evidence of instability in the Arab world and supports Israel's contention that the lifting of the U.N. arms embargo to the Middle East will prove foolhardy. "Nothing could be more dangerous than to pour arms into this sensitive area," he said.

NOTICE: Since the New Year greeting of the family of Morris Appelbaum, 127 Concord Avenue, Toronto, was received, Mr. Appelbaum died, but regrettably no correction could be made in the Review since the greetings section had already been printed long in advance of publication.
